The Catholic Archbishop of Argentina, in a similar statement to that recently issued by the Mexican Catholic Church, last week proclaimed a crusade against Protestantism. The archbishop attacked the Protestants for supposedly breaking up the Catholic hierarchy. He prohibited the reading of Protestant newspapers and the attending of any schools and other than Roman Catholic. Finally he forbade all contributions to the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. and to the Salvation Army.

That pet Trumpet expression "orchids to..." isn't just an employment of the word "orchids" to coincide than any other place between Chicago and Denver or between Camp and West. Our supply of orchids is inexhaustible.

A sign of the times — a lot of local dignitaries were in the Wartsburg drawing room after the game. They were all congratulating the team on their thrilling 33-51 win over Luther.

The Bremer County Independent solved their help shortage by buying out the Waverly Journal.

Note to the seminary fellows who claim that they "don't have anything to do" — a Dean's letter. Several Grossman Hall occupants are spending their "leisure" hours in this manner.

Q & Q's
Next week's basketball game at Upper Iowa will differ from the one last year in at least one respect. Approximately two thirds of the student body including the team and pep club followed the team to Fayette last year. Travel restrictions have curbed any such mass support this year.

Q & Q's
Incidentally the rumor to the effect that the May graduation exercises will not be required to go to the seminary this summer is merely wishful thinking.

Library Corner

As recent additions to our bookshelves we find the following:

A contemporary Greek account by Thucydides of the war between Athens and Sparta, starting about 432-412 B. C. is a welcome addition to the Loeb Classical Library.

One of the series in the Newberry Memorial Awards for the most distinguished contribution to American history and literature. The Library is setting all the books which have received this award. The Chicago University Library will receive special benefit from this series.

Three new art books have been received. These are some reproductions of Leonardo, David, Goya, and Raphael. These books are valuable, not only to the art students, but to anyone interested in this field.

And, especially of the 1935 are ten books in the field of sports, probably the best of their kind published by the U. S. Naval Institute. Included in this series are such sports as football, American football, gymnastics and tumbling, wrestling, and brass exercises, games, and tests.

against the Mexican Protestants. As was to be expected, other Latin American countries have been asked to follow suit by forbidding any further connection with anything Protestant. In this very issue, this column carries a news article from the Argentine where the Catholics have been undertaking to ruin the Y.M.C.A. and the Salvation Army, over the threat of aid to the people. It is quite apparent that the Catholic Church is making an all-out effort to crush the freedom of the last breath of Protestantism. We must stop looking ourselves. Catholicism is triumphant south of our borders, but will prevent her from attaining to Cuba. Protestantism here in America? With the whole of Protestantism fighting itself, the Roman Catholic Church is in the best position possible to deal us a death blow. By this time the reader is probably asking, "What problem?" Well, to be very frank, it is quite apparent that our national government. We can hope that the new state department is more favorable towards Protestants and thereby will grant passports to missionaries. This, however, is still very doubtful and therefore we have only one way in which to solve this most difficult problem. The answer is prayer; prayer backed up by implicit faith in a just and merciful God. We only can turn to God through Jesus Christ, for a solution. I urge all who should ever read this article, to offer a prayer to God, beseeching Him to protect and defend all those who preach the True Gospel in all lands, from one end of the earth to the other. With the realization that prayer works miracles, let us join in a total effort to support Protestantism all over the world.

Round Table Discussion Is
Highlight of Convocations

The Thursday convocation was a student convocation. Four students, Marilyn Wallace, Betty Johnson, Ronald Jensen and Lloyd Dornth were the speakers of the round table discussing the problem of current interest on the Campus.

What role does religion play in our dormitory life? It was presented in this manner: "Practical devotions" — "Dorm and joint chapel" and "Attitude of students toward each other." The convocation was a very appealing one to the students and more such discussions are being planned for the future.

Kenneth Koll, a Junior Preacher, opened the Friday religious convocation. His sermon was based on Proverbs 22:18, "Where there is vision the people perish." The delivery showed a great amount of preparation and gave most of the religious convocations a new slant.

On Monday slides were shown. The slides were pictures portraying the second coming of the Antichrist.

"Friendship" was the theme of the Tuesday convocation. Dr. Hiltner presented two papers emphasizing the theme of friendship. The portions of scripture were chosen from Psalm 133, the story of Jonathan's love for David and James 15, the friendship chapter. The Bible readings were followed by songs on friendship.

Professor Cornils spoke in the Wednesday convocation. He chose as his theme the second petition, "Thy Kingdom come."

I Timothy 1:15 was the source of Dr. Hiltner's sermonette in the Friday religious convocation. The passage reads, "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief."

The Brotherhood meeting in the St. Paul Parish House, Sunday, Jan. 28th, had as a portion of their program a very musical selection from three Waverly students, Margaret Fritschel and John Richmond chose as their piano duo two numbers, "Miserere" and "Andante Religioso." The third student, Herb Broeking, chose as his vocal solo "The Last Chord."

The musical feature for the Friday religious convocation was a solo by Ed Fritschel. Ed chose as his song "My Earnest Place."

Margaret and John were also guests at the Legion meeting on Feb. 5th. Their two piano selections were "The Last Chord" and "My Earnest Place."

Navy quietest in Washington, D. C. Pete Mueller (41-42) is still playing basketball games—this time in Southern France. He is also coaching a team that won sixty-three out of sixty-five games. This league there is made up of about 80 teams.

According to the dean there is quite a bit of "red" talk going through. Police records must be turned in every town in which the applicant has resided in and notarized recommendations must be received from every employer of the applicant. Nine days before the final date the applicant's name is posted and any objections are to be raised, then is the time to do so. Judge Craven, District Judge of Iowa, pronounced Mr. Fritz a citizen of the United States and Congressman Guy Gillette sent a letter of congratulations along with a pamphlet on American Government.

Most of the applicants were Russians and two were British subjects," says the dean. "One girl from India and I was from Canada." "The thing that impressed me was Judge Craven's little talk before we swore allegiance. It was based on tolerance—that both of our races should accept any person in the United States. The fact that I am not a good citizen of the United States."

Prof. Swenson In recognition of his ability, the University of Iowa has named him as a professor of the University of Iowa. He is a faculty to take charge of the department of analytical chemistry. The department head of that office has been called into government research. Mr. Swenson lectures four hours during the week, and has charge of laboratory periods during the week of laboratory assistants under him.

Professor Swenson has been taking graduate studies at the University of Iowa. He is a chemistry major, earning the degree, Doctor of Philosophy, in that field. He is on a year's leave of absence from the science department of Wartburg.

When the men who is to complete charge of the development of penicillin in the United States came to Iowa, Mr. Swenson was one of the privileged few who were invited to the lecture.

The three churches cooperate in Sunday afternoon in presenting a number from 5:30 to 6:30 followed by an hour of discussion. This program has been described as very successful.

Prof. Swenson will continue his work during the summer in order to get his degree, although he will be at Wartburg in September for the next year's work.

HERTLEMEIN IN EASY 73-40 WIN OVER DUTCHMEN

The Knights really burned the hoops at Central Friday, January 27, and shot down the low-flying Dutchmen 73-40. Rebounding from a rugged Simpson hit the previous evening, Doc's sharpshooters found the range for 31 fielders and 11 gift shots. They paid a comfort and all the way and were ahead 33-18 at the intermission. In the second half the Hertlemen went on to more than double their score.

Doc Oltmstead, freshman forward, went on a scoring spree and scored the nets for 33 points. He led the evening's score. Lowell Koch looped in 13 counters and John Keller collected 12. Van Thomsen, Central center, tallied 17 points as high man for the riders.

It was Wartburg's fifth conference win against five losses and Central's sixth loss in seven starts.

SIMPSON KNOCKS KNIGHTS 71-59

The Wartburg Knights dropped their second loop encounter of the season with the Simpson Redmen last night by the score 71-59. Simpson pulled away in the opening ten minutes to a 22-9 lead. In the closing minutes of the first half the Knights rallied to bring the halftime count to 32 to 27 with the Redmen only five points in the lead.

The Knights continued their spurt into the second half and soon caught and passed the Redmen. The lead increased back at fourth with neither team getting more than a three-point margin for quite some time. With about six minutes remaining in the game the count was knotted at 42-41. At this time the Knight defense loosened up and Simpson pulled away in the final minutes for the victory margin of 12 points.

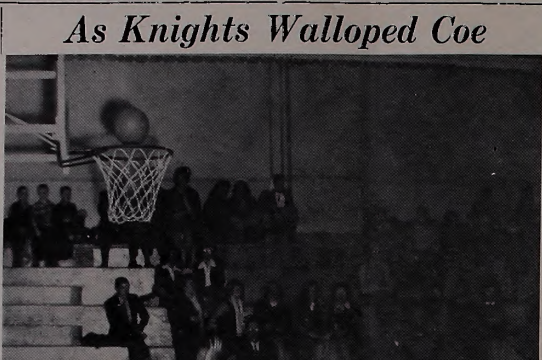

The Redmen were minus the service of Dykstra after a 6' 8" center, Oltmstead and Koch scored 29 and 21 respectively for the Knights, and Williams led the Redmen with 22.

With the Knights

A cloud of dust, a streak of light, a sharp ball—this is a place, this is the Wartburg College basketball squad, this is the practice court in the college gymnasium. It is a typical weekday afternoon and the cream of the crop of Wartburg basketball is ironing out the kinks in the fast break and eliminating the flaws in the shifting zone defense under the watchful eye and guiding hand of men-in-chief Dr. E. W. (Doc) Hertel.

After a fifteen-minute session of bucket-shooting and warming-up, a semblance of order is reached as Doc's characteristic voice calls out "Off the line, off the line, off the line." (Five always waded in Doc's "off the line" but he blows his whistle.) Next the interested listener will hear Doc say "Red, Red, Red, Red, Red" and the forwards, Lowell, you take center for awhile, and Wally, you and I will make the guard's defense. Then, after a hectic few minutes of bucket-shooting, the team is organized for a scrimmage. In a few additional seconds we find the team lined up against their and a so-called short scrimmage gets to begin. The action is fast. After a good scrimmage session Doc gets a word in edgeways again and asserts, "Well, we'll go for about ten minutes yet and then call it enough." Five minutes pass, ten minutes pass, fifteen minutes pass. Shilling hits his stride, and snubs begin to pour in for the injured. The team romps. Twenty minutes are gone. Still the action does not seem to be over. Finally after thirty-five minutes have dragged away Doc observes that the time has come for the "more baskets."

After the practice session is over until tomorrow! The gallant Knights are now free to remove their armor, take their horses, and their armor, and file to the dining hall where their entrance is now awaited by Dr. Good, the waiters, and heaps on heaps of food. The team is now in the tasy—bread and pitcher after pitcher of nice cool, rich-warm. Ah, well, basketball has its compensations. The trips are certainly nice!

Jensen lucky Knight guard is shown here making up a basket against Coe. Shot poured in 35 points against the Cedar Rapids.

CONFERENCE RECONNAISSANCE --By "The Quiddnuncs"

A lot of fireworks have gone off during the past two weeks in the Conference meet, Loras and Western Union (of course) are still leading with five and four victories respectively against no defeats. The Dubuque U. Spartans fall off from the undefeated ranks at Davenport before the Seas of St. Ambrose last week. St. Ambrose was the last team to defeat the Spartans three years ago before they went on to win twenty-four in a row. It seemed that the hand of fate has destined those same Seas to snap that string in a close game.

Wartburg's best half rally to escape by Luther was scratching to beat it. They overcame a thirteen point deficit to upset the Norsemen and secured the victory in the closing seconds of play.

Oltmstead also got to the Loras Duquesne for their outstanding performance against Hamline U. Hamline, one of the top teams in the Midwest and only recently defeated by only a point by DePaul which is rated as tops in the Midwest. The Knights dropped a hard-fought game to the Loras Duquesne 73-43 here on Tuesday, January 26. The Hertlemen jumped into an early lead but were relinquished to the Catholics as they began to hit the bucket. The Duquesne held a comfortable twelve or fifteen point lead during the majority of the first twenty minutes, but the Knights came back strong to nearly catch their opponents with a minute to go when the score stood at 22-24. Then Loras poured in three quick buckets to force a hard to a 32-24 half-time lead.

Wartburg Rallies to Edge Luther's Norsemen 53-51

Jensen's Bucket Provides Margin

Wartburg's fighting Knights came from behind in the last half against Luther last Tuesday evening and edged the Norsemen with a 53 to 51 score. Bounced at the half with a 15-point deficit, the Knights started out with fire in their eyes after the intermission to stage a powerful rally and vanquish the boys from Luther.

The Knights got the jump on the opening whistle and Ted Oltmstead sank two free throws after being fouled as he stood on the floor following the tip. Koch added another point on a clearly foul and Luther slammed home a third shot to up the score to 10. It then went to 2 and 4 before Luther started to pull into the lead.

Norsemen lead

The visitors' fast break began to click and they rolled up a large advantage and then stalled for the last few minutes of the half, coming off the floor with a 38-20 lead. The Knights came back to score in 10 points and close the deficit to 4 before the Norsemen added and hit the bucket.

After this surge of offense ended, Luther upped the count to 42 to 20. After some time Luther was fouled on the part of the Hertlemen, the difference was pared to 42 to 24. At this point Lowell Koch was fouled while shooting and sank the shot after some time. Luther was charged with a technical foul for disturbing Luther while shooting and was charged with a technical foul for disturbing Luther while shooting and was charged with a technical foul for disturbing Luther while shooting.
